MCRD CAR SHOW ON THE BAY

By Ann Goldberg

As a pre-registered car, entering a show is usually a pretty casual affair. You know the drill. Stand in line, wait your turn, smile at a couple of workers, give one your registration card or number, receive your packet, park your car. By comparison, entrance to the MCRD Car Show on the Bay was a very different affair. Drive into a holding area, follow directions from Marines bearing side arms: open hood and trunk, exit car, wait to the side until your vehicle passes a large dog's "sniff test," re-enter your vehicle after being given permission. All handled efficiently with military-like precision.

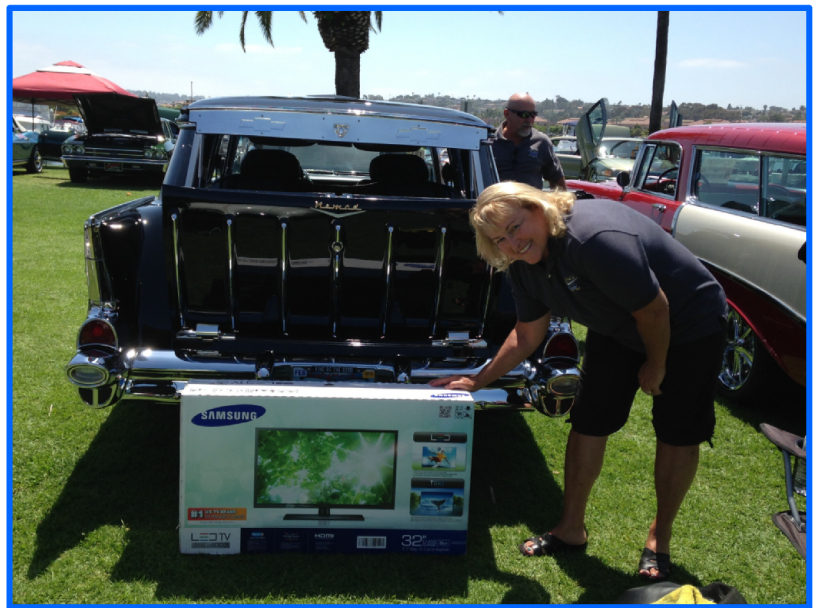

Once inside, the day was, for the most part, very relaxing. Park on grass at the edge of the bay, laze in the warm California sun, walk the rows of cars, chat with friends, enjoy lunch in the shade of an umbrellaed table or inside a cool dining room if you choose — all while trying to ignore the roar of jets frequently taking off from nearby Lindbergh Field.

With the exception of the People's Choice award, judging for the good sized and varied field of vehicles was completed by Marines. The Harvey's, Rindskopf's, Goldberg's and Bob Brown represented the Tri-5 Revolution and while none of our cars were recognized, all was not lost. Sam and Donna were raffle winners taking home a new television, and Sam got the son he never had. Cute little fellow. He's even a Charger's fan!

The Kitchen Scoop

on Burger Accompaniments

Family picnics are a fond memory of summers when I was young. These would include my fathers' parents, Mim and Bert; my Aunt, Uncle and three cousins; and me with my Mom and Dad. Mim would be the organizer of the event and choose the destination: often Johnson's Pond, where we could watch graceful wild swans swim under drooping weeping willows, or Godfrey's Pond, a private area with swimming hole and stocked fishing pond where Bert had a family membership.

The menu was typical of the time when our Tri-5's were new: hamburgers and hot dogs (the old-fashioned ones that snapped when you bit into them), kept cold on the road in a red plaid Skotch Kooler; potato or macaroni salad packed in the "Penguin Bowl", an insulated stainless steel orb with a row of embossed penguins and black bakelite handles (It wasn't until I was writing this article and researching its real name that I learned this was intended to be an ice bucket.); baked beans, the casserole dish wrapped in insulating newspaper then placed in a brown grocery bag; lemonade from a gallon Thermos jug, with watermelon for dessert.

Now days in our family we replace beef burgers with salmon. Here are three toppings that sound to me like they'd be delicious on either type burger you choose.

Cream Cheese and Sour Cream Sauce

Combine 1/2 cup softened cream cheese, the white and green of three scallions finely chopped, 1/2 cup sour cream and 1 teaspoon lemon juice.

Soy Sauce and Slaw

Mix 1/4 cup low sodium soy sauce and 1/4 cup sugar in a very small saucepan. Stir over medium heat for 2 to 3 minutes until syrupy enough to coat the back of a spoon. Add 1-1/2 Tablespoons of the mixture to 3/4 cup mayo. Top your burger with the sauce and a scoop of slaw. Remaining soy sauce mixture will keep indefinitely at room temperature.

Curry Mayo

Add curry powder to taste to mayo and use it to top your burger.

50's Gas Station

At our last club meet I spoke of my friend Robert Watkins and his 50's gas station he has been working on this Winter/Spring. I thought I'd share a couple of pictures of it. Most of the station was made from old scrap. The office was a old freezer box from a truck. lots of welding/cutting here. The island cover is old pallets. Windows come from an old RV and of course the water/air reel on the island that I found at the "Q" swap meet.

. Enjoy! Ron Foote
